

200 HOURS' WIFE A HOUSEWIFE.

John Noordam's Need of a Wife Overworks
the Postmaster.

HIS MAIL "HELD UP."

Factory Girls and Widows with Children Among the Applicants.

John Noordam, the rich Montana ranchman, who has come East to find a wife, and is living in Hoboken, yesterday received over two hundred letters from girls and widows who are willing to share his wealth.

The majority of the letters are from residents of Jersey City and New York. One was from a Brooklyn widow, who wrote: "My husband has been dead six days, but I know you could fill his place by the side of myself and my young children. I live in Brooklyn, but am tired of the life there, and would much prefer to take up a residence in Montana, where I am told there are no taxes and no other duties than to get up with you. I will call on you to-morrow, if you don't object."

"I am a poor girl employed in a tobacco factory in Jersey City," wrote another, "and have been looking for just such a man as you are described to be. I am not a bit beautiful and will meet you any place you wish to name. Could you send $10 in the meantime to the below address, as I am badly in need of a new hat?"

In red ink two sisters wrote: "We are two sisters, and mamma says you are the kind of a man one of us would like to marry. We are good cooks and can sew and mend things really good. Mamma thinks that I would be more acceptable, as I have a better hair, but is otherwise not very good. Can we see you Saturday, as papa gets paid on that day, and we can get our fare from Newark to come and look you over?"

Noordam yesterday received a call from two young women residing on Jersey City Heights. Both were well dressed and good looking, but received no encouragement from the rich ranchman.

Noordam said yesterday that he never expected to receive so many letters. "I cannot answer all of them," he said. "But will reply to those who appear to be in earnest. Out West there are ten men to one woman, and in the East it appears as if the girls were in the majority. I am going to keep the addresses of the women who have written to me and will give them to some of my friends in West. I am sure that all of them will write to the women who honestly want husbands."

Postmaster Schroeder, of Hoboken, because Noordam's mail was so large, held it up until he had made an investigation.

SAYS AUNTIE TOOK HER BY SPOUSE.

But Mrs. Kane Avers She Simply Protected
the Youth.

Here is another kidnapping case, but it relates to a husband instead of a baby. Little Mrs. Ella Johnson, of No. 16 Central place, Williamsburg, has been bereft of her little better half, aged sixteen, and she told about it in the Last Avenue Police Court yesterday.

It was a tale of a wicked aunt, but the aunt says she did not need to resort to abduction. Little Mrs. Johnson is the daughter of Policeman Hink, of the Vernon avenue police station, and her mother accompanied her to court.

"Please, sir, I want my husband—my Albert!" said little Mrs. Johnson. "W-w-want you to please help me to get him away from—p-p-please from his auntie?"

And then she unfolded a paper, which proved to be a marriage certificate showing that she and little Mr. Johnson had been married on May 16 by the Rev. William Diehl, of the First New Church, in Lynch street.

"We started housekeeping and we were as happy as could be. But one day about a week ago my Albert went to see some friends at No. 38 Almsie street, and after he left there his auntie called him into her house, at No. 13 Almsie street."

"Mrs. Kane—that's Albert's auntie—made him a prisoner and locked him in a room on the top floor and wouldn't let him get out."

The magistrate advised her to consult a lawyer, and she departed in tears. "Stiff and nervous," said Mrs. Kane. "He was forced into marrying the girl and he came here for protection. On Saturday his auntie took him to Europe, and he won't be back till the fall."

DRUGGIST'S ERROR
POISONS A GIRL.

The mistake of a bungling drug clerk in mixing up two prescriptions very nearly killed fourteen-year-old Anna Hiber, of No. 200 Hivington street, on Tuesday night.

RELIC HUNTERS REVEAL IN POLICE "JUNK SHOP."

Artist Swinnerton Sees the Delighted Bargain Hunters Garry Off Their Treasures.

Men who lumber up their houses with worthless relics and who buy useless things, on the ground that they are cheap, had a red letter time of it at Police Headquarters yesterday, when Property Clerk Harriott had laid out his most tempting wares.

All the old trash that had come into the possession of the police during a year was put up at auction. It was divided into 207 lots, some of them mysterious bundles, which purchasers were not allowed to open, but which Harriott knew very well consisted of old newspapers or something of that sort.

In the collection was a quantity of policemen's old uniforms, worn out things, ragged and tattered, that were used first for the Broadway squad for a year and then sent over to Brooklyn for the policemen there.

They had become too much eaten even for employment at Bath Beach, and were now offered to the highest bidder.

Men who said they were representatives of the Police Departments of Ridgewood, N. J.; Chicago and Philadelphia, were on hand to secure them. There was spirited competition among these men, and eventually the Philadelphia got them.

"That means that our police force doesn't get new uniforms this year," said the man from Chicago, as the lucky bidder piled the clothes into a large wagon. He paid as much as one cent apiece for some of the helmets.

The sale of the billies, night sticks and blackjacks. These were bought by beetle-browed men who looked as if they knew how to use them. "Knockout" drops, brass knuckles and fero alloys were not sold, those articles being destroyed in the Headquarters.

The revolvers and daggers which buyers believe were used in prominent murders fetched high prices. No guarantee was given with such articles, but they had red stashes on them, which might have been blood, but wasn't. It was red clink, put in a spirit of humor by the property clerk.

Bicycles and baby carriages were sold in large numbers. One which fetched 50 cents and after an examination, the purchaser had a row with Harriott because he wouldn't give him his money back.

The buyers angrily disputed the possession of things that they would let lie in the streets in front of their own houses for months without ever thinking of wanting them.

Harriott made a splendid auctioneer. "Look at that flat iron," he would say. "Did you ever see a hand iron like this? One more calculated to grace the home of a person of taste?" Then there would be a wild rush for the flat iron, every one wanting it, and Harriott would wink to himself.

Bird cages, in which no self-respecting bird would consent to remain, were disposed of at panic prices. The proud buyers loaded themselves down with their acquisitions and marched home to meet their wives.

A pair of pink lights was bought by a man who looked something like George Lederer.

The property department used to pay a garbage collector to take away its rubbish, but Clerk Harriott hit upon the auction idea, and now people not only take the rubbish away, but pay for the privilege, and argue among themselves.

The sidewalk in front of the Central Office was crowded with buyers, lost in the contemplation of their things, and the police had to drive them away, waking them from their fond day dreams with good, hearty club prods.

The Police Pension Fund got the proceeds of the sale.

Westchester County Notes.

Judge Lent sentenced Joe Burns, of West Farms, yesterday to State Prison for four years, on his pleading guilty to the charge of grand larceny.

Charles Heneman, fourteen years old, was arrested by Chief Bogert, of White Plains, for stealing a bicycle from the house of a neighbor. The boy, who is said to be a native of the East, was taken to the Westchester County Jail and held for trial.

MACEDONIA SINKS, NO LIVES ARE LOST.

Capt. Kuffahl with Half a Crew Tries in Vain to Save His Ship.

Resting on the bottom, almost on an even keel, two miles off Seabright, N. J., is the wreck of the chartered liner Macedonia.

Captain Kuffahl, the Macedonia's commander, stuck to his vessel until the rising water extinguished her fire, and in spite of the fact that most of his crew had deserted the ship and gone on the Hamilton after the collision, as told in yesterday's Journal.

Captain Kuffahl made a gallant effort to beach his vessel. Failing in this he set a blue fire, and then, with the two passengers and the eight members of his crew left, he boarded one of the lifeboats and stood by the Macedonia until she lurched and sank. This was not ten minutes after the Captain, the last to leave the sinking craft, stepped into the lifeboat.

The blue light had been seen by the Merritt-Chapman wrecking steamer, Rescon, which bore down on the boat and took off the survivors and landed them at Stapleton at 4 o'clock yesterday morning.

One of the Macedonia's crew, Captain Kuffahl, felt keenly the loss of his ship, and the practical desertion of his crew at the time of the collision.

He especially expressed surprise at the action of the Macedonia's chief officer, who, he said, was one of the first to climb over the bows of the Hamilton when the latter was wedged in the rent she had made in the Ward Line's starboard side.

The Hamilton, with a hole in the bow extending fully twelve feet back of the water on each side, was lying along side the Macedonia at the time the latter yesterday discharging cargo into the latter.

All the freight was dry and the Guyanador, which the Hamilton's full cargo and all her passengers, started for Norfolk at 6 o'clock last night. The Hamilton will be dry-docked to-day.

The Macedonia was of something over 1,400 tons net register, and was valued at about $150,000. Her agents say there is little hope of her being raised, and the Merritt-Chapman Wrecking Company is of the same opinion.

Captain Woolsey, of the wrecking company, says the vessel is in 30 feet of water. He will try to-day to get at her cargo—10,000 bags of raw sugar, which was worth $180,000.

Captain Woolsey expresses the opinion that little of it can be taken out, as it dissolves rapidly in the water.

NO CRIME TO SELL FOOD ON SUNDAY.

Judge McMahon Orders
Jury in Krakauer's
Case to Acquit.

Abraham F. Krakauer, delicatessen dealer, of No. 300 Columbia avenue, arrested on March 26 for having his store open and doing business on Sunday, was tried before Judge McMahon, in General Sessions, yesterday.

After hearing the evidence the Judge directed the jury to acquit.

Krakauer has been arrested seven times, the Grand Jury refusing to indict him for a violation of the Sunday law. On March 20 he was arrested after selling some soda crackers and a box of sandwiches.

Judge McMahon, in directing his acquittal, said that the law specifically permitted caterers to sell food on Sundays. The definition of the word caterer—one who buys or provides food—clearly covers keepers of delicatessen stores.

New Animals at the Zoo.

Superintendent Smith, of the Central Park Menagerie, received yesterday from Hamburg, Germany, two punas and an antelope from Hagenbeck Brothers as part of the exchange made for Cynos, the hippopotamus, which was sent to Hamburg recently.

Police for Summer Resorts.

Chief Devery has transferred 115 policemen from Manhattan, The Bronx and Brooklyn to precincts in which there are summer resorts, where they will be doing the duties of the summer. The men reported yesterday morning at their new stations.
